KILLINGS ARE FEARED AT THE
ELECTION IN KENTUCKY'S
BLOODIEST COUNTY

By Associated Press.
JACKSON, Ky., Nov. 1.—Though a strong force of militia is on guard here there is an undercurrent of apprehension tonight and the people are worried over what the election tomorrow will bring for "Bloody" Breathitt.

Democratic and Republican managers both are charging each other with fraud and attempts to steal the election. Judge J. P. Adams, present incumbent and Republican candidate for re-election, who appealed to the governor for troops said: "In making the request for troops I was heeding the appeals of the people to prevent a conflict. Men led by Ed. Callahan, armed with rifles, were in the old Hargis building, issuing threats of death. They had begun to shoot up the town and were terrorizing citizens when I sent the militia to the governor. I felt it my duty not to wait until any one was killed. "No doubt the presence of troops has prevented bloodshed and saved many lives."

O. H. Pollard, chairman of the Democratic committee, said: "All the trouble was brought about by the Republicans in their determination to take the election. The county court issued ballots two days before the time fixed by law. They were stolen from the bank. Warrants were issued for the arrest of those who took them but they were heavily armed and to prevent bloodshed the sheriff permitted them to leave town. The citizens are indignant at the action of Judge Adams in taking command of the troops instead of placing them under command of the sheriff as the law requires."

There are ominous signs of trouble. Even though the Lexington militia is encamped here, Governor Willson is hurrying to Frankfort from New Orleans.

This message from Jackson was sent to the governor: "Hell broke loose in Breathitt."

Some of the bloodiest affairs in the history of Kentucky were fought here. The government has wasted no time and armed men are supporting Circuit Judge J. P. Adams, the Republican candidate against D. B. Redwine, Democrat.

Callahan's band of armed mountaineers left their intrenchment tonight and retreated to Crockettville, followed by soldiers. Callahan's precinct is expected to furnish the most excitement tomorrow.

ELECTION RESULTS ARE EAGERLY AWAITED IN BIG CITIES

By Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 1.—On the eve of the first municipal election under the primary law this city is keyed up to the highest pitch of expectancy over the outcome of tomorrow's battle. The rivals in the triangular fight finished their campaign tonight with many mass meetings. The struggle is complicated and scratched ballots are certain to be so numerous that the machines cannot be used. Hence the certain results will be long delayed, though elaborate preparations have been made for a quick count.

William Crocker heads the Republican; Dr. T. B. Leland, three times coroner, the Democratic, and P. H. McCarthy, the Union Labor ticket.

The most bitterly fought for office, however, is that of district attorney. Charles Fickert is the nominee of the Republicans and Union Labor, while Heney was endorsed by the Democrats, the Heney league, the Good Government league and the Independence league.

There was no truce tonight in the acrimonious exchange of personalities and by the candidates, which has marked the campaign throughout. Each candidate predicted a decisive victory.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 1.—Adopting Taft's views that the time for taking is past, the Lakes and Gulf Deep Waterways association decided tonight to send 500 lobbyists to Washington to demand of congress that the Mississippi river be deepened.

The resolution was adopted amid enthusiastic cheers and raucous "rebel" yells. The resolution calls on congress to adopt a definite plan for improvement, starting with the Mississippi and Illinois rivers as the trunk line of the lastes to the gulf channel.

The issuance of a small denomination of bonds is urged as the best method of financing the great project.
